5.3. Chinese Walls

Chinese walls in a Company refer to the distinct segregation between different units or activities or departments. The Watch List is a list of securities which the Company chooses to monitor, without restricting trading in those securities. The particular securities may have been chosen as the Company may have received confidential information, such as in transactions which the Company has provided advice or performed deals.

The Watch List is used to ensure compliance with the procedures relating to insider trading and Chinese walls.

The Restricted List is a list of securities, which are subject to restrictions in handling client orders, as well as for personal and related accounts. The placement of a security on the Restricted List generally restricts trading in the specific classes of the security.

When a security is put on the Watch List or Restricted List, the Company reviews the associated transactions (related personal accounts and client accounts) on a daily basis.

7. Market Abuse monitoring, detection, prevention and reporting

Market abuse is a concept that encompasses unlawful behavior in the financial markets and it should be understood to consist of insider dealing, unlawful disclosure of inside information and market manipulation. Such behaviour prevents full and proper market transparency, which is a prerequisite for trading for all economic actors in integrated financial markets.

The essential characteristic of insider dealing consists in an unfair advantage being obtained from inside information to the detriment of third parties who are unaware of such information and, consequently, the undermining of the integrity of financial markets and investor confidence. Employees of the Company who is in possession of inside information are prohibited to take unfair advantage of the benefit gained from that information by entering into market transactions in accordance with that information by acquiring or disposing of, by attempting to acquire or dispose of, by cancelling or amending, or by attempting to cancel or amend, an order to acquire or dispose of, for his own account or for the account of a third party, directly or indirectly, financial instruments to which that information relates.

Orders placed before a person possesses inside information should not be deemed to be insider dealing.

The employees of DCC are prohibited from misusing "inside" information and engaging in market abuse. Market abuse includes:

- Inside information is non-public information which has been provided to DCC by an external source on the basis that it will be kept confidential and will not be used for DCC's benefit, including management, employees and their associated persons
- Improper disclosure is where there is disclosure of inside information by the director of an issuer to another person in a social context and then improperly disclosing this information to the analysts
- Manipulating transactions effecting transactions or orders to trade, other than for legitimate reasons and in conformity with accepted market practices which give or are likely to give a false or misleading impression as to the supply of, or demand for, or as to the price of specific financial instrument
- Any other activities aimed to create a false or misleading impression as to the supply of, demand for or price or value on investments

In no cases should the employees of DCC engage in behavior that could be considered as market abuse. It should be noted that refraining from disclosing information may result to market abuse. If there is any doubt about what constitutes market abuse then the Compliance/ AML Officer should be contacted to provide clarifications.
